It cannot be denied that this is overwhelming proof that the increase of the country in material wealth has been great and constant since the war began. The increase on each specific article produced for general markets has been similarly great and regular. At Chicago, the first great point from which the produce of the interior moves to Eastern markets, there was forwarded in five years the following quantities of flour and grain: Wheat and Flour Corn. Oats, Rye, and Total Grain, reduced to Wheat. Barley.
