Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Communications on the Death of Charles T. Brooks, Vol. 21: Of Newport, R. I It not being known yet, or even clearly knowable, that the Salem boy is the beginning of the Newport man, that is to be, his childhood and boyhood pass here without special notice in their unfolding and events, except as now and then one, teacher or fellow-student it may be, having occasion or opportunity for closer observation than the i rest, sees a promise, not of just that which will come later, I but of something not of the commonplace to be waited for I and expected, if this life shall reach an autumn ripening. It was at the summer solstice, when the days were longest and the nights at their minimum, that a child of light was born to Timothy and Mary King (Mason) Brooks: June 20, 1813. It was Sunday, moreover, and the sound of the church bells and of the carol of birds was in the air. If nature had a day in her calendar for that year, select and celestial, it should have been this; a day for a poet to be born; for even a babe of paradise not to feel astray or lonesome looking its first upon this warm, fair, leafy and flowering earth. The house now numbered seventy-seven in Bridge street, northern corner of Arabella street, was the birthplace of Charles Timothy Brooks. For fifteen years he remained under his father s roof, from the summer of 1813 to that of 1828, though the family home was not long in the Bridge street house. Among the earliest things we learn of him, outside the...
